Peter Massey, Jeanne Wilson, Angela Titus : California Trails Northern Sierra Region before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised California Trails Northern Sierra Region:

The trail descriptions are well detailed with turn by turn directions along with GPS coords. I have only tried a couple trails so far and they seem close to what is out there in reality. I would say most of the trails are fairly easy, 2's 3's, (where a 5 or above is high clearance 4WD required) and more for the scenic value. Always double check with the local NFS office for closures of roads and trails. I will post an update after I have tried more trails when the snow clears. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By WendyPerfect8 of 16 people found the following review helpful. Cover photo mis-labeled in book text By firelo While I found this book to be pretty much as advertised, I don't completely trust the authors. There are a lot of detailed driving instructions on each road featured, including odometer readings to the tenth of a mile. There is also a good amount of historical information present which I found very interesting. However, I find it challenging to have much faith in the details of this book, since the authors did not get the name right for the fire lookout shown on the front cover. They call it Grizzly Ridge Lookout, when it is actually Argentine Rock (or just Argentine) Lookout. How can I be sure? I spent two entire summers staffing this lookout back in its active days. The spur road to the lookout is reached from the Grizzly Ridge Road to be sure, but that is not, and never has been, the name of the lookout. The authors should at least have learned that from the Forest Service map. How long ago did the authors actually make the trip described? When I last visited the Argentine Lookout in 2004, the structure had deteriorated considerably more over the years since the cover picture had been taken. This makes me wonder how much the road conditions described have changed as well. Is this book out of date? Very likely, at least for certain roads described.

This handy 6x9 guidebook is a new, full color volume that navigates 1,310 miles of backcountry trails in California, near the towns of Sacramento (east), Red Bluff (east), Truckee, South Lake Tahoe, Sonora, Susanville, Chico, Oroville, Yuba City, Placerville, Stockton (east), Jackson, and Sonora. See ghost towns, old mines and mill workings, old railroads and stage lines along the 55 off-road trails. Directions include GPS coordinates and all trails are rated for difficulty, mileage, driving time, remoteness and more. Descriptions highlight places to camp, hike, mountain bike, fish, and sightsee. Histories recount the days of the Wild West.
