George Stratton : Camping California's National Forests (Regional Camping Series) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Camping California's National Forests (Regional Camping Series):

California's 19 national forests contain 20 million acres of public land. They stretch south from the glacier-covered volcanoes of the southern Cascades to the serrated granite spires of the Sierra Nevada to the desert foothills of Mexico, and east from the rugged Pacific coastline at Big Sur to the forested shores of Lake Tahoe. Within these diverse lands lies a cornucopia of outdoor recreational opportunities. Camping California's National Forests, formerly The Recreation Guide to California National Forests, makes it easy to enjoy these outdoor lands. Scenic photos and detailed maps accompany each chapter, as well as a handy campground directory that lists information on campsites, RV accommodations, fishing, boating, swimming, traveler's services, and special attractions. Whether taking an extended vacation or a weekend getaway, Camping California's National Forests makes an ideal traveling companion for anyone visiting the Golden State's national forests, listed below.
