You have to know how to use this book...By amfdtpLike some of the other reviewers, I was disappointed in finding erroneous info in some areas of this book. But the real value in buying it, is in learning about all these little known campgrounds, many on public lands. In fact, at the beginning of each state's listings, they list all the various agencies and their phone numbers so you can contact them ahead of time. We bought these books (Eastern Western editions) after buying our new camper in 2007. Having the ability to be self-contained - and hating "parking lot camping" - we wanted to try boondocking. Instead, we discovered an amazing amount information on public lands with primitive campgrounds. The title is a little deceiving, as many of the reduced rates are limited to seniors. But the fact that they are listed at all, allows us to get on the Internet and track down more info. No, I wouldn't use this as a sole directory if I were on the road with camper in tow, looking for a place to pull off for the night. But we find it a great starting point for finding the most amazing places we never knew existed; and we've been having a great time checking them out. In fact, this book helped us find a fantastic destination again this summer. If you know how to use this book, it's well worth the investment. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Buying 2005 edition based on success with the 2002 editionBy AlphathoughtCan't agree with the gentleman who says it is only for the young. I am 65 with a 23 foot B+ and have found numerous out of the way as well as near the Interstate places to stay for peanuts. The information tends to get dated quickly, but seems to be OK when getting just the relative costs (what was $5 is now $10, etc.) Maps are a little primitive but there is SO MUCH information in the text. I just ordered the 2005 editions (East and West) for my upcoming trips.

This book lists, alphabetically by state and city, all campgrounds where overnight camping fees of $12 or less are charged. It provides its buyers with an opportunity to save significantly on their travel costs when current overnight camping fees are typically $25 to $50 per night.
