William Beebe : The Log of the Sun: A Chronicle of Nature's Year (Classic Reprint) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Log of the Sun: A Chronicle of Nature's Year (Classic Reprint):

Bird s-eye glances and insect seye glances, at the nature of our woods and fields, win reveal beauties which are wholly invisible from the usual human view-point, five feet or more above the ground. Who follows the lines must expect to find moods as varying as the seasons; to face storm and night and cold, and all other delights of what wildness still remains to us upon the earth. Emphasis has been laid upon the weak points in our knowledge of things about us, and the principal desire of the author is to inspire enthusiasm in those whose eyes are just opening to the wild beauties of God's out-of-doors, to gather up and follow to the end some of these frayed-out threads of mystery. Portions of the text have been published at various times in the pages of Outing, Recreation, The Golden Age, The New York Evening Post, and The New York Tribune. C. W. B.
