By msd; Having received my early spiritual education in the Moravian Church, and being interested in the amazing early history of it's development in 'the new world', I find the journey of Anna Catherina's life deeply rewarding. No one today can fully comprehend the bravery of those early pioneers and, particularly, the great devotion of women in the early development of our faith and our 'new' nation. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great look at early Moravian life for women. By JK Standish This story is based on the diary of a real Moravian woman. It reads very well. It is not only an engaging narrative, but is tremendously helpful to the genealogist/historian in understanding the condition and experiences of women in the time period and in this setting. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars. By Penelope I love this book!

From Library Journal This volume was gleaned from the memoirs of Anna Catharina Antes (1726-1816), a deaconess in the Moravian Church who left her native Pennsylvania for the wilds of North Carolina. The 1946 text received high praise, such as that in Book Week : "Fries has built all the material into a narrative so rich in atmosphere and sustained in interest that it has much the same quality of a very good historical novel. Her work is extraordinarily deft and sensitive and possesses both warmth and integrity." The volume works as a history, a biography, and a religious title.
