Henry Charlton Beck : The Roads of Home: Lanes and Legends of New Jersey before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Roads of Home: Lanes and Legends of New Jersey:

10 of 10 people found the following review helpful. Great for fans of Jersey or folkloreBy TurlockHenry Charlton Beck has done historians, folklorists, and folks who love New Jersey a great service with The Roads of Home and the rest of his series of books on old-time New Jersey, told by the folks who lived it. He captures people, places, and events of a New Jersey long since paved over with McMansions and strip malls, in the voices of those who remembered when New Jersey was farms and fields, grand old inns and rustic cabins, old railroads and older canals.It was a New Jersey that once was, and in the pages of this and Beck's other books, it lives again.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. This book arrived in very good condition and in a timely mannerBy CustomerThis book arrived in very good condition and in a timely manner. I really enjoy H. Beck's writing and his personal accounts of the people who lived in South Jersey.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Douglas FrancioseAnother great book.

"None of this is orderly, store-bought legend or folklore. This is the way people talk, sought out and recorded by one who loves both the people and the talk."--The New York Times Long regarded as folklife classics, Henry Charlton Beck's books are vivid recreations of the back roads, small towns, and legends that give New Jersey its special character. Father Henry Charlton Beck, who lived in New Jersey nearly all his life, was the author of numerous books on New Jersey folklife, state editor of the Camden Courier-Post, and writer for the Newark Star-Ledger. He is considered New Jersey's first folklorist and his painstaking work has left us with a rich collection of tales.

From the Back Cover This book is a sampling of the lore of the whole State, an honest attempt to present some of the outstanding stories as they have been remembered or tucked away in yellow publications hard to come by.
